Behr Hella Service has expanded its range of fans by almost 85 products since August 2011 to just over 250 products. This has significantly strengthened the market position of the thermal management expert, Behr Hella Service, in this product group. Almost 60% of the Western European passenger car fleet is now covered. Behr Hella Service will continue to expand its product range in this area in the future.

Behr Hella Service – play it safe, with engine cooling.

The demands on engine cooling systems are constantly increasing. Today more than ever, new solutions aim to have a positive impact on fuel consumption, emissions, driving comfort and driving safety via heat transfer. Quality products from Behr Hella Service are distinguished by their suitability, reliability and long service life.

Electric fans from the thermal management experts.

A high-performance engine cooling system should be quiet, light and space-saving – hardly noticeable, but reliable. Not only do you need powerful radiators to dissipate heat in passenger car engines, but efficient fans to provide cooling air as well.

A condenser or radiator fan consists of an electric motor and a flange-mounted fan wheel. They are installed before or after the condenser or radiator. They remove heat from the refrigerant or coolant via the generated air flow. An additional or more powerful fan is usually used in vehicles with an air conditioning. Owing to the specific installation point, dirt or stone chippings, for example, can cause environment-related malfunctions or defects. Damage is frequently caused by head-on collisions.
